A TRAINING AND EXPERIENCE NARRATIVE WHICH RESPONDS TO THE FOLLOWING FIVE QUESTIONS:

1. Your department director is giving a presentation that will be livestreamed and recorded for later use in future events and social media posts. List at least five planning and technical considerations you would include when preparing for this event.
2. As the lead producer of a training video, what are at least seven variables you would consider in your production process from start to finish?
3. Describe in detail at least one example of a story you produced, shot, and edited, including your process from concept to delivery.
4. You are in pre-production process of recording a testimonial video and your client sends you a photo of the empty room you will be using. Your client is not sure of the conditions of the room. List at least six steps you would take to ensure a successful production.
5. You are assigned a last-minute project with multiple agencies, stakeholders, and public officials involved. You are receiving conflicting direction about your role and priorities at the shoot. What are at least four steps you would take to approach and resolve the situation?
